An errand-boy stole $2,000 from his employer, a Liverpool chemist. When arrested, about three weeks afterward, he said: "I am glad it has come to this, for I have had a good spree out of the money." All the money he had left was $85 and small change.

STATISTICS show that the inhabitants of New Jersey who are in the State-prison have better health and longer life than those who are out of prison. Whether this is due to the strong con-stitution of the convicts, or to their forced observation of the laws of health is not shown by the figures. But, from either standpoint, the facts are signifi-cant.

Almost the universal article used on the Continent for kindling fires are dry pine cones. A couple of these are usu-ally enough to start a fire of dry wood, and several of them contain enough and several of them contain enough resinous material to start a coal fire without other kindling. They are readily ignited with a match, and are free from dust and insects. In Paris, and other large cities on the Continent, scarcely any other than pine cones are used for kindling purposes in the hotels, and it is a wonder to us that they have not been introduced for the same purpose here. We believe a large and profitable business might be made from gathering the cones in pine growing regions and selling them in our cities.

SUCH loss of life and property has followed the wanton cutting down of entire forests, for years past, that several European Governments have appointed commissioners to interfere in this, and instead of removing at once the entire growth of forest lands, they now thin the trees out only when attaining their full growth, and in their prime. In this way, just as large, if not a larger, product of lumber is obtained during a half or a whole century, and the roots of the trees left standing and the underbrush act as filters for power-ful rains, retard their otherwise rapid the underbrush act as filters for powerful rains, retard their otherwise rapid

It is astonishing how quickly the American people take up with any new and useful invention. Three or four years ago the telephone was unknown. In the recent suit the National Bell Telephone Company agreed to pay Gray 20 per cent. of the rentals of these instruments. This year, while the telephone is comparatively in its infancy, the percentage of these rentals will amount to $100,000, which shows to what an enormous extent telephones are used throughout this country.

Ar Huichinson, on the 18th, Walter Courtight, son of Mrs. Courtright, postmistress at Arilington, was so mangled by the cars that he died in a few minutes. It seems that the boy was climbing on the cars of a detached part of the train, and was knocked off by the train coupling. He fell under the train, the wheels crushing his left leg and the left side of his body to a jelly. His right leg was broken in two places. The Coroner impancied a jury, and held an inquest at once. The verdict exonerated the railroad company from all blame, and pronounced it an accidental killing.

Although he was dead for a time, he called at the Press office later in the week and resported the above facts.

I want to tell yet how to make a hammock. We have some that we planned ourselves, and find that after lying in them a short time we are completely rested. Take four yards of strong unbleached muslin, make a wide hem at each end, slip ropes through, fasten to a tree, and by changing your position a trifle, you have an easy chair, a bed or a cradle. We find ours very comfortable to sew in. The whole family enjoy them from the "house-hand" to the baby; from 4 o'clock they are occupied until night. They are particularly attractive and amusing to the children. I hope some one will try this kind of a hammock, then tell us how they like it. We could not get along without ours.—Tolcio Blade.

The following from the Christian Sinterman may interest some of your readers. It refers to the wonderful specess of an Eastern physician in treating this terrible disease.

"Very many, not only in the Middle States, but in New England, the far West and South, and also in foreign lands are being treated by him through correspondence. A case in point in this connection was that of Mr. Thomas Allen, now living at Philadelphia, Pa. He had been afflicted twenty-two years. Two years ago he wrote to Dr. T. and received treatment without seing the Doctor, which has cured him of his attacks. Mr. Allen was a Trustee in the First Baptist Church, and his case is well known to many of the first people where he lives. He is a gentlemen of means and leisure, and takes pleasure in seeing persons desiring to make inquiries of him, and also in answering their letters."
